

Report Advertisement

Arizona ban on ethnic studies unconstitutional

REUTERS

23 AUG 2017 AT 17:12 ET

Facebook 40

Twitter

More 18

Judge A. Wallace Tashima (Youtube)

DON'T MISS STORIES. FOLLOW RAW STORY!

Like

Jade Norena and 1.1M others like this.

Follow @rawstory

A federal judge has overturned an Arizona ban on ethnic studies courses aimed at Hispanic students, saying it was motivated by racial discrimination and violated pupils' constitutional rights.

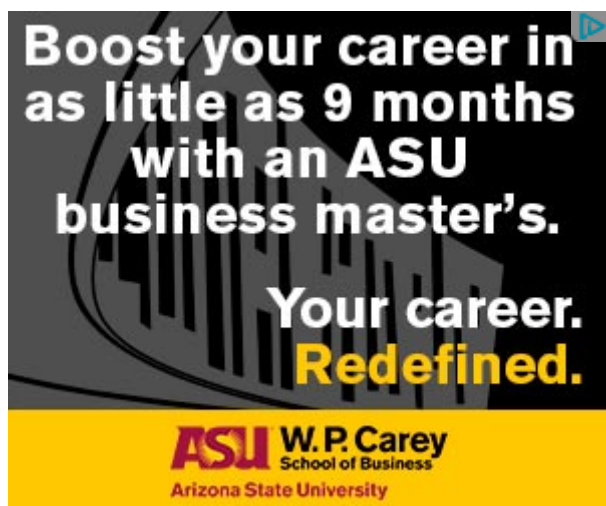

ADVERTISING

lawsuit by students and parents challenging the law, which ended a Mexican American Studies, or MAS, program run by the Tucson school district.

“The Court is convinced that decisions regarding the MAS program were motivated by a desire to advance a political agenda by capitalizing on race-based fears,” Tashima wrote in his ruling.

Officials with the Arizona Department of Education were not immediately available for comment. A Tucson Unified School District member, Kristel Ann Foster, said she was “elated” to be able to restore the program to classrooms.

In 2006, Arizona’s then-schools superintendent and former attorney general, Thomas Horne, began a probe that Republicans were the state threatened to withhold funds until it was stopped.

Boost your career in as little as 9 months with an ASU business master's.

Your career. Redefined.

ASU W.P. Carey
School of Business
Arizona State University

Tashima, however, backed a study conducted in 2012 – the year the program was dropped from the syllabus in Tucson – which found MAS helped improve the graduation rates and test scores of some of the district’s worst-performing students.

One of those, Alfred Chavez, 27, said he had been on the verge of dropping out in 2006 when he signed up for the MAS curriculum at Tucson High School. He credits the classes with keeping him in school and propelling him toward a career in education.

“They didn’t just appeal to the A+ student. They appealed to street kids, the marginalized population,” said Chavez, who works as a program specialist at Mesa Community College near Phoenix. “It turned them on to education.”

About 64 percent of Arizona’s school students are Hispanic, according to state figures. The MAS program included units on Mexican-American history, art and literature.

“extraordinary” win.

“To show that a state passed and implemented a law with discriminatory intent is extremely hard these days,” Reiss said.

Speaking to Reuters before the ruling, Horne said he continued to believe such courses were racist and had no place in schools.

“They should learn about the contributions of all groups, not their own group,” Horne said.

(Reporting by Taylor Harris in New York; Editing by Daniel Wallis and Peter Cooney)

Everyone, Please Stop Doing This At Restaurants

Some of the world's best service staff reveal the dos and dont's of restaurant etiquette

Sponsored by Fashion Beans

Facebook 40

Twitter

More 18

Report typos and corrections to corrections@rawstory.com

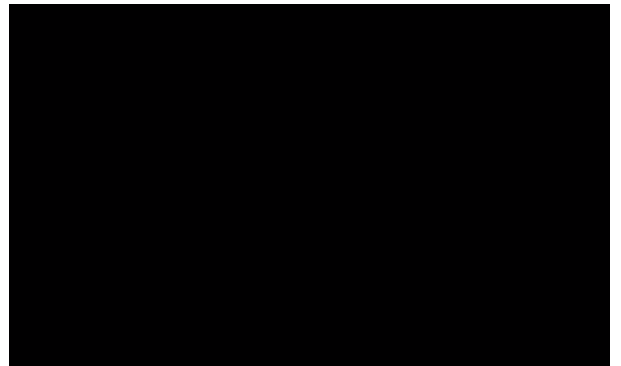

NEXT ON RAW STORY >

Paul Manafort loses second legal team in a month as attorney shakeups continue

By commenting, you agree to our terms of service and to abide by our commenting policy.

READ COMMENTS - JOIN THE DISCUSSION

Report Advertisement

NEW STORIES

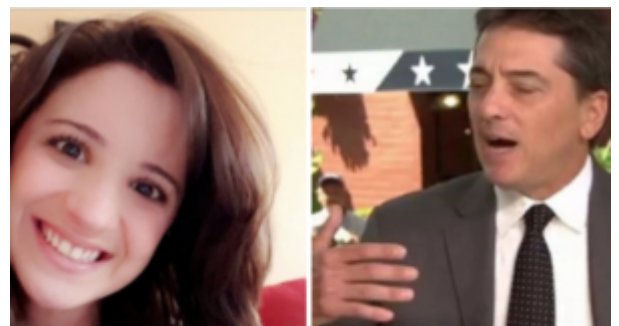

Bernie Sanders the most popular politician in the US according to new poll

Ex-KGB agents help Kim Jong Un beef up security

Paul Manafort loses second legal team in a month as attorney shakeups continue

Sandy Hook victim's sister rejects apology from Scott Baio over 'false flag' Heather Heyer tweet

Meet the group behind most Confederate statues

Report Advertisement

"Every State Gets to Choose Two Statues"
Senator Tim Kaine

Tesla Model X Beats Lamborghini At Drag Race In World Record

If You Drink These Coffee Brands, This Will Make You Want to Stop

Mexico's prickly pear cactus: energy source of the future

SIGN UP FOR OUR NEWSLETTER

Get the best of Raw Story, delivered daily

Email Address

SIGN UP

Paul Manafort loses second legal team in a month as attorney shakeups continue

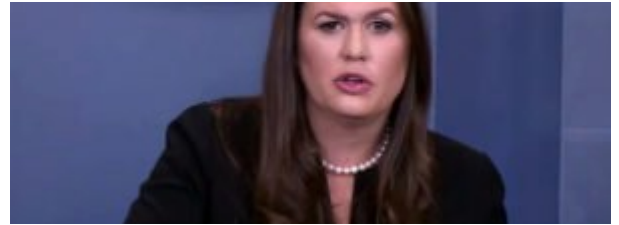

Sandy Hook victim's sister rejects apology from Scott Baio over 'false flag' Heather Heyer tweet

Alt-Right icon 'Based Stickman' sent to jail – won't spread his hateful message at San Francisco rally

WATCH: Sarah Huckabee Sanders scrambles after reporter asks why Trump thinks 'very fine people' march with racists

Trump slaps new sanctions on Venezuela 'dictatorship,' state oil firm

'No other place to go': Former allies say Bannon's return to Breitbart is anything but triumphant

NEW VIDEOS

Alt-Right icon 'Based Stickman' sent to jail – won't spread his hateful message at San Francisco rally

WATCH: Sarah Huckabee Sanders scrambles after reporter asks why Trump thinks 'very fine people' march with racists

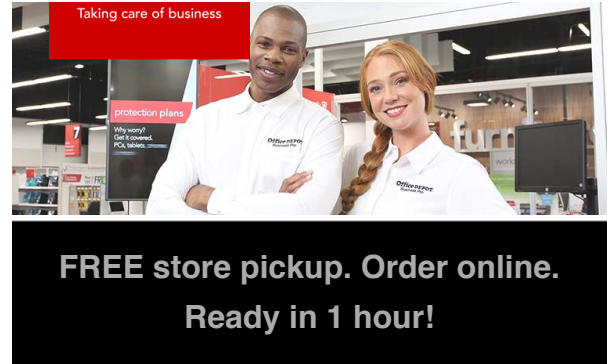

Mnuchin insists Trump adviser Gary Cohn 'excited' to work in White House despite writing resignation letter

Trump's lack of party loyalty has left DC 'littered with dead Republican bodies': ex-Bush adviser

WATCH LIVE: Trump spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders holds White House press briefing

REDEEM NOW

Report Advertisement

Report Advertisement

SEE ALL RAW STORIES

Report Advertisement

SIGN UP FOR OUR NEWSLETTER
Get the best of Raw Story, delivered daily

Email Address

SIGN UP