Mesa Community College in December awarded associate in applied science in paramedicine

Paramedicine students are prepared to pass the national certification exam to achieve the high in the U.S., according to a release.

“MCC paramedicine graduates are emergency medical service professionals who are well prepared for advanced medical and trauma care,” Sean Newton, MCC paramedicine program director, said. “They are trained to provide emergency on-scene treatment, crisis intervention, life-saving stabilization and, when appropriate, transport ill or injured patients to emergency medical and surgical treatment facilities, such as hospitals and trauma centers.”

“Mesa Community College is ranked as one of the top programs in Arizona and boasts that 100 percent of MCC paramedic graduates pass the National Registered Paramedics exam, according to the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians,” Newton said in the release.

EMSI Career Coach data projects the demand for emergency medical technicians and paramedics in Maricopa County will grow steadily over the next decade.

To enter the MCC paramedicine program, individuals must first earn an EMT certification. Learn more about the MCC emergency medical services programs at mesacc.edu/departments/allied-health/ems.
