San Francisco, CA (PRWEB) March 14, 2017

The Community for Accredited Online Schools, a leading resource provider for higher education information, has compiled its list of the best colleges and universities with associate degree programs for 2017. Of the 50 schools on the list, East Mississippi Community College, St Philip's College, Allen County Community College, San Antonio College and Holmes Community College were the most highly ranked.

"Associate degree programs are often the first stepping stone to vocational careers or an advanced degree," said Doug Jones, CEO and founder of AccreditedSchoolsOnline.org. "The schools on our list have shown a commitment to giving their students the highest quality resources for success, while offering flexible, comprehensive online programs."

To earn a spot on the Community for Accredited Online Schools list, each college must be an institutionally accredited, public or private not-for-profit entity. Each school is also considered based on such criteria as their student/teacher ratios, employment services, student resources, graduation rates and financial aid availability.
