MCC Rose Garden

Posted on July 2, 2016 by Andrea R Huelsenbeck

My offering for Cee's Flower of the Day photo challenge:

My youngest daughter, Katie, did some of her undergrad work at Mesa Community College in Mesa, AZ, but I never availed myself of the beautiful Rose Garden until this past May. I'd heard it was pretty extensive, but I didn't realize how big it really is. Every time I rounded a bed, I saw more in the distance. After forty minutes of exploring and shooting over 160 photographs (I've included a few of the best), I'd only seen about half of the garden. Perhaps someday I'll post a part two of this article.

Several entrances to the garden beckon from different angles and sections of the parking lot.

I always thought roses had to have layers of overlapping petals. These only have five petals.
